

We would like to provide some context regarding the recent activities and challenges of ResiRest, especially in relation to the unprecedented times in which we live.

Like many sectors worldwide, the travel industry has been hugely impacted by the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic. ResiRest, as a social enterprise that depends on travel and cultural exchange, was no exception. In fact, we felt the impact at various levels - not only with us but also with our partners and the communities with which we work.

While there was some hope of recovery within the European Union in 2022, the borders in much of Asia remained closed, and we saw a significant contraction in the long-haul travel industry. This meant that the recovery and restart of ResiRest only began in 2023, in line with the rest of the sector.

It's important to note that these figures and trends are not a direct reflection of our commitment or the potential of ResiRest. They represent the unprecedented and extraordinary challenges that we have all faced in recent years. We continue to pursue our mission to connect travelers with local families for unique dining experiences around the world, and we look forward to doing so again in the near future.

Thank you for your understanding and continued support.
